Descrição

The role of Macao and the Portuguese-speaking countries.

China's Belt and Road Initiative is one of the most important diplomatic and economic projects of our times, one that needs continuing in-depth coverage given its size and complexity. This book aims to provide the public with a comprehensive and easy-to-understand guide on this great national project. It also explains the role of Macao and the Portuguese-speaking countries in the initiative and in the Great Bay Area, another important national project of the 21st century. The initiative has the ambitious goal of remaking the world's economic and political map, with China sharing prosperity with business partners worldwide.

This book was published by IIM, a partnership with the Maritime Silk Road Association (Macao) and supported by the Macao Foundation.
